Valiant Knights earn International Recognitions

The young valiant Mathematicians will not stop reaping awards!

Juan Rafael Landicho and Maria Bernadette Landicho added up to their pile of awards received as they bagged recognitions in the Southeast Asian Mathematical Olympiad (SEAMO). Rafael was given a Gold Award while his sister, Bernadette, was given a Silver Award.

SEAMO syllabus is developed based on the Singapore Mathematical Olympiad curriculum and 40% of contents were modified to meet international standards. It is a comprehensive syllabus which exposes students to in-depth, stimulating, and interesting mathematical problems.

Moreover, Maria Bernadette Landicho and John Raymond Valdez, along with Juan Rafael Landicho who was already awarded, received recognitions in the Australian Mathematics Competition (AMC). Bernadette got a Distinction Award while Raymond received a Credit Award.

Thank you for the tokens of love that you gave the faculty and staff of SSIS last Christmas. We appreciate your effort in getting us those gifts. As we opened each box, we felt a certain connection that you are aware of what would bring us delight, and what would make us smile. Your gifts, big and small, are truly appreciated and we wish that your generosity will earn blessings tenfold.

SSIS BATANGAS bags Second Place in its 22nd year

As we close another year, allow me to pay tribute to all the MENTORS & GUARDIANS OF THE VALIANT KNIGHTS for having been able to win the SILVER AWARD (Second Place) in the annual SGEN Faculty and Staff Christmas Party presentation / competition held last December 15, 2017 at the SISC Luxembourg Hall. With a lot of GRIT and GROWTH MINDSET, we were able to surpass our Bronze Finishes for the past 4 straight years (2013, 2014, 2015, and 2016) and had finally clinched Second Best after the Admin Group of SISC.

Special Congratulations and Thank You to the following people who had exerted extra effort in making sure that the presentation turns-out great:

- Tch. Sharon for writing the final script and concept and for directing the presentation.
- Tch. Raquel for writing the first draft of the script.
- Tchs. Aera, Ythan, and Nurse Edz for the choreography of the dance sequences.
- Nurse Edz, Ms. Cris, Ms. Hannah, Ms. Rose, and Sir RJ for conceptualizing and doing the props.

- Tchs. Mitch, Angela, Jahz, Tessa, and Joice for becoming voice talents.
- Sir King for the final presentation video.
- DJ Joseph of 99.1 Spirit FM for the recording and editing of the final song and dialogues.
- EVERYONE for the superb acting, dancing, and singing!

Tips to Help Your Child Prepare for Tests

A test is a method for a teacher to gauge what her students know (and need to know), but tests aren't just for the teachers. By taking tests, children learn solid study skills, learn from errors, and learn how to handle the unknown (like pop quizzes) in an academic setting. Through practice and preparation, children will feel equipped and ready to handle tests -- without feeling the need to cheat. They will also be less afraid of failure or mistakes because they'll rely on their own abilities and put in their best efforts.

Try these test taking strategies for kids to smoothen the transition between learning and recall, schoolwork, and test day. Soon enough, your child will become a master of test taking.

1. Involve the whole family. Play short and relaxed 15-minute games (or "study breaks") instead of enforcing a stressful cram session. Involving siblings and grown-ups will also make learning fun instead of fretful.
2. Engage the senses. Some concepts stick better if you integrate the senses of touch, smell, and sound in fun ways. "When there's movement involved, kids are more likely to remember facts than when they're just sitting at a table, skimming textbook information," says Ann K. Dolin, a Washington D.C.-based tutor and author of Homework Made Simple: Tips, Tools, and Solutions for Stress-Free Homework.
3. Craft fun flash cards. Whether your child is prepping for a spelling, math, or social studies test, a set of flash cards can help her review fast facts anywhere. Make the flash cards unique, with index cards, colorful pens, magazine pictures, and stickers for different subjects.
4. Talk test strategies. Test-taking tactics don't come naturally to most kids, but teach them this one: When they're first handed a test, they should take a few minutes to scan all the directions and questions. Teach children to skip the most difficult questions, but leave enough time to return to them later. Then, if there is still time left, they should review the questions and chosen answers.
5. Design a practice test. A night or two before the test, draft a practice test for your child. This will help both of you figure out what he or she does and doesn't know.
